

Job Description: Technical Manager

Role Overview

As a Technical Manager, you will be responsible for managing and maintaining all technical production infrastructure across the theatre. You will be the primary contact for production teams on technical matters, including equipment and crewing. Your role will include scheduling and onboarding staff for lighting, sound and projection. You will also liaise with the Premises Manager to ensure all technical infrastructure is documented, maintained, and fit for purpose.

Key Responsibilities

Production Crewing

As Technical Manager, you will ensure all productions are appropriately crewed for both rehearsals and show nights. Your role in crewing will depend on the performing house.

- Internal Productions: Act as the central contact for show teams for scoping and requirement gathering. You will schedule staff for rehearsals and performances. You will also work closely with the set-building team to meet lighting and projection needs.
- Touring Productions: You will liaise with the touring company to accept and execute their theatrical show rider. Additionally, you will provide the company technicians with appropriate handover sessions, ensuring the requested equipment is correctly understood and properly integrated.

Technical Infrastructure

You will oversee the management and configuration of all production and corporate technology infrastructure. You will recommend and implement new solutions while maintaining existing systems, ensuring all equipment is properly documented. You will also liaise with staff and third parties to oversee configuration, policies and intent. The equipment involved is detailed below.

- Production Infrastructure: Dimmers, Lighting Fixtures, Lighting Consoles, Lighting Nodes, Projectors, Production Computers, Sound Consoles, Speakers, Amplifiers, Sound Network Controllers, Show Relay Equipment, Patching, and Network Switches
- Corporate Infrastructure: CCTV Cameras, NVRs, DVRs, Corporate Switching, Network Firewalls, Wireless APs and Controllers

As Technical Manager, you will play a vital role in ensuring that all productions are delivered to the highest technical standard, supporting both the artistic vision of the theatre and the needs of visiting companies.
